Download penalties to change

Federal government revamping copyright law for personal use

The federal government has moved to bring the copyright law into the 21st century, to catch up with the Internet revolution.

Industry Minister Jim Prentice introduced legislation yesterday that would ease penalties for people who illegally download copyrighted music and videos for their own use, but maximize penalties for those who want to turn it into commercial gain.

The current copyright law, which has not been updated in more than 10 years, doesn't acknowledge rapid technology advances. It contains a provision that could mean a teenager, for instance, sitting in his or her living room, could face damages of $20,000 for copying a movie off the Internet.

But under the proposed legislation, the penalties for copying a movie would be capped at $500 in some circumstances — although critics caution this is by no means clear cut.

Proposed amendments to the act are "clearly intended to protect consumers in respect of what might technically be an infringement, but relates to personal, private use," Prentice said.

The Conservative reforms would give consumers the right for the first time to copy a book, newspaper, periodical, photograph or videocassette that was "legally acquired."

But any copies must be for personal use only and a consumer can only make one copy of a work for each device — such as a computer, hand-held device or cellular phone — that the consumer owns. And copies cannot be given away or sold to others.

But the changes would make it illegal to copy a compact disc or DVD to a personal digital device such as an iPod — even if a consumer has already paid for the CD or DVD — if it involves breaking a so-called digital lock to make the copy. People caught hacking digital locks would face penalties of up to $20,000.

The Liberals said the new act appears unenforceable. "Are we going to have cyber police now?" asked Liberal heritage critic Denis Coderre. "How are they going to manage to go and (investigate) while respecting privacy?"

Liberal MP Scott Brison called the proposed legislation "half-baked." TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE focus shifted

» The act would shift the focus for enforcement to Internet providers or copyright owners, who could sue those who use their material. But, for example, if someone downloaded five movies without authorization for his or her personal use, the penalty would still only be $500 total.

Teens drive up Internet use

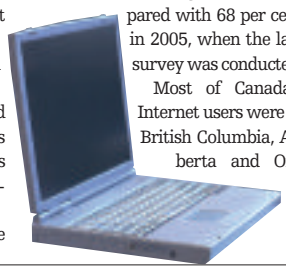
Statistics Canada reports 73 per cent of Canadians use Net

Almost all 16- and 17-year-olds in Canada have used the Internet, either for doing school work, sending text messages, playing video games or listening to music, according to a study released yesterday.

Statistics Canada said it included this age group for the first time in its Internet use survey and these teens accounted for part of the overall increase in online use in 2007.

"They're younger, but at the same time they're experienced users," said Statistics Canada official Larry McKeown.

Overall, 73 per cent of Canadians aged 16 and older, or 19.2 million people, used the Internet mostly for e-mail and browsing. That's compared with 68 per cent in 2005, when the last survey was conducted.



Most of Canada's Internet users were in British Columbia, Alberta and Ontario.

The survey found 97 per cent of 16- and 17-year olds have used the Internet. McKeown said 70 per cent of that age group has used the Internet for five or more years.

"Internet use is really a hallmark for an information society," said McKeown, of Statistic Canada's science, innovation and electronic information division. "Is this group of people, is this community, is this country ready to compete in an information society? So Internet use is an important hallmark of that, an indicator of what I might call digital literacy." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Board failing to bridge gaps

More needs to be done to help students: Report

A startling demographic snapshot of students across Canada's largest school board shows the system is failing to help children overcome roadblocks of culture, race, poverty and family background.

The ambitious personal student survey of achievement, to be made public next week, is a call to action for the Toronto District School Board to try to reduce these barriers over the next five years, says director of education Gerry Connelly.

"It confirms our belief that the status quo for too many of our students is not working," said Connelly in a covering letter for the 55-page report, which shows boys lag behind girls in almost everything including math, that teens born in Mexico tend to fail more Grade 9 courses than classmates born in India, and that students whose first language is English are less likely to pass Ontario's compulsory Grade 10 literacy test than those who speak Hindi.

The report was distributed to principals, and Connelly pledged in her note "we will continue to work together to raise the bar and close the gaps in student achievement."

Tickets issued for convenience: TTC

The Toronto Transit Commission has issued tokens since 1954, when it opened the Yonge subway.

They are the same price as adult tickets and they're available in most of the same places.

Still, Wednesday's announcement that the TTC plans to stop issuing adult tickets in September has many patrons crying foul, particularly men who like the convenience of being able to fold the tickets into their wallets. It also has some wondering why the TTC has bothered to issue both tickets and tokens at all.

The main reason is that tickets can be used to distinguish between student, senior and adult fares, said TTC spokesperson Brad Ross.

"It's really a convenience issue. People like the tickets — they're lighter, they can put them in wallets."

Cops cleared in fatal shootings

The Special Investigations Unit has cleared Toronto police of wrongdoing in connection with two fatal shootings.

In both cases, officers made "reasonable" decisions to fire their weapons based on evidence collected on the scene and witness testimony, SIU director James Cornish said in a statement.

The first shooting incident took place last Halloween at Riverdale Park. The second shooting happened in Oriole Park following a theft.

Report school assaults: MPP

Alleged whipping of Grade 1 boy spurs call for law

Principals and teachers should be forced by law to report student-on-student crime, an MPP says after a Grade 1 student in York Region was allegedly whipped by older boys in the school washroom.

Under the Child and Family Services Act, teachers are only compelled to report adult-on-student crime or suspicion of harm to children's aid.

Tory MPP Frank Klees says that must change.

Klees said the Opposition is willing to work with the government to close the loophole before school begins in the fall.

"There should be no question about whether an assault has to be reported to parents and to police," said Klees (Newmarket-Aurora).

In the assault, two older students allegedly whipped the young boy with belts. The principal did not call police, and the parents learned of the assault from their older child.

The parents immediately called police, who laid charges of assault and assault with a weapon against the Grade 8 students.

Pilot project screens Thorncliffe students

Testing for vision, hearing problems

Grade 5 students at Thorncliffe Park Public School will be screened for vision and hearing problems as part of a pilot project to help inner-city children at 50 schools. Any students who have sight or hearing troubles will be given glasses free and subsidies for hearing aids and other devices will also be provided.

In a pilot project in 2005-06, almost half of all children screened needed a follow-up with a professional, mostly for vision problems.

The project is funded by the Toronto public board and its charitable foundation, as well as Sprott Asset Management and Wal-Mart.

Industry differs on bill

Copyright reforms lauded, criticized by music, film groups

Reactions to the Copyright Act amendment introduced yesterday in Parliament range from cautious optimism to confusion and outright skepticism in Canada's music and movie industries.

In a carefully worded joint statement a coalition representing the Canadian Recording Industry Association (CRIA), the Canadian Independent Record Production Association (CIRPA), the Alliance of Canadian Cinema, Television and Radio Artists (ACTRA), the American Federation of Musicians (AF of M) as well as Canadian music publishers, music retailers and music managers, applauded the bill and thanked the federal government "for recognizing the need for copyright reforms."

"The organizations are united in seeking balanced legislative measures that better protect the rights of artists, songwriters and other rights holders in today's digital world while also respecting the needs of consumers to fully enjoy music and other digital products that they have legally acquired," the statement continued.

Bill Henderson, vice-president of the Songwriters Association of Canada, was less sanguine.

"The bill says clearly that file sharing will no longer be permissible, but how that will increase the income of music rights holders is a mystery," Henderson said.

"And how will the new law be enforced — and by whom?" TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Quebec price fixing fuels further probe

Other markets being investigated for illegal gas deals

The federal Competition Bureau says it is investigating gas price fixing in other provinces in the wake of criminal charges and convictions in Quebec.

"We are sending a very clear message to the retail gas industry that we are closely monitoring what they are doing, and we will not hesitate to take action," said competition bureau commissioner Sheridan Scott in an interview yesterday.

The bureau announced at a news conference in Montreal that criminal charges have been laid against 13 people and 11 companies for allegedly fixing gasoline prices in four Quebec markets. This is the first time since 1955 that a gas price fixing prosecution has resulted in convictions, said Scott.

She said gas retailers in Thetford Mines, Victoriaville, Magog and Sherbrooke allegedly phoned each other to agree on gasoline prices. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Ontario gets D for day care

The Canadian Labour Congress gives the federal government and most of the provinces poor marks for their efforts to provide affordable, quality day care.

The labour groups says the federal government gets an incomplete grade for failing to provide stable, predictable funding for child care.

Of the provinces graded, Manitoba gets the highest mark, a B-plus, while British Columbia is in the corner with a D-minus. Alberta and Ontario also get D grades, with most of the other provinces and territories in the C range. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gitmo suspects can access courts

Civil rights groups claim win in U.S. top court decision

In its third rebuke of the Bush administration's treatment of terrorism suspects at Guantanamo Bay, the U.S. Supreme Court has ordered that the 270 remaining prisoners, including Canadian Omar Khadr, be given access to federal courts to challenge the legality of their detention.

The 5-4 decision was heralded as a major victory by civil right groups that have condemned the U.S. prison located off Cuba since it opened more than six years ago.

"The laws and Constitution are designed to survive, and remain in force, in extraordinary times," Justice Anthony Kennedy wrote for the court, clearing the way for what's expected now to be a flurry of U.S. court challenges by Guantanamo prisoners.

But what impact yesterday's landmark ruling will have on Khadr's case remains unclear.

His lawyers will likely file motions in both the U.S. federal and Guantanamo courts requesting that his war crimes trial be postponed until Khadr is able to challenge his imprisonment — a legal right known as habeas corpus.

calls for Khadr's repatriation

» U.S. Navy Lt.-Cmdr. Bill Kuebler, Khadr's military-appointed lawyer, added the decision should "serve as a cue" for Prime Minister Stephen Harper to intervene. In Ottawa yesterday, Opposition MPs and Canadian human rights groups echoed the calls for Khadr's repatriation.

Unless the stay is granted, the trial is expected to move forward. A Pentagon spokesperson confirmed last night that Khadr is still scheduled to appear next Wednesday for a pretrial hearing before a Guantanamo court, where he is facing five war crimes charges, including murder for the death of Sgt. Christopher Speer, whom he is accused of killing during a firefight in Afghanistan in 2002. Khadr was 15 at the time.

Khadr's lawyers said they are hoping the political impact of yesterday's high court decision will be more effective than its uncertain legal implications.

"For six years Omar Khadr has been kept illegally in Guantanamo Bay," said his Canadian lawyer Dennis Edney. "It's time now for Canada to request that he be sent home."

Afghanistan gets $22B in aid

Rallying to the struggle for Afghanistan, international donors exceeded expectations yesterday with aid pledges of nearly $22 billion in a collective gesture representing a new emphasis on development over military action.

With many of the more than 80 countries and international organizations on hand in Paris padding their promises with previously announced contributions, confusion abounded over the true heft of commitments as the day-long donors conference unfolded.

'robust' aid

» Interim Foreign Affairs Minister David Emerson, in one of his first high-profile acts after replacing Maxime Bernier, said Canada will provide "robust" aid in the form of an additional $550 million for the period ending in 2011.

But in the end, French Foreign Minister Bernard Kouchner pegged the final tally at $21.9 billion — a figure hailed by some of Afghanistan's most dedicated aid overseers as above and beyond their best hopes.

"This is just an unbelievable result — very supportive of Afghanistan, very supportive of better co-ordination and aid effectiveness," said Chris Alexander, the former Canadian ambassador to Afghanistan.

Obama camp denies 'whitey' remark

Democrat Barack Obama's campaign said yesterday Michelle Obama never used the word "whitey" in a speech from the church pulpit as he launched a website to debunk rumours about himself and his wife.

The rumour that Michelle Obama railed against "whitey" in a diatribe at Chicago's Trinity United Church of Christ has circulated on Republican blogs for weeks and was repeated by radio talk show host Rush Limbaugh. The rumour included claims of a videotape of the speech that would be used to bring down Obama's candidacy this fall.

"No such tape exists," the campaign responds on www.fightthesmears.com. "Michelle Obama has not spoken from the pulpit at Trinity and has not used that word."

The site is a response to the realities of a brave new world, where voters are increasingly turning to the Internet for information.

Four Boy Scouts killed in twister

CAMP When the howling winds finally died down, the Boy Scouts — true to their motto, "Be Prepared" — sprang into action.

Dozens of the boys, ages 13 to 18, were hailed for their bravery and resourcefulness yesterday, the morning after a twister flattened their camp in Iowa and killed four of their comrades.

At least a dozen people remained hospitalized yesterday with everything from bruises to spine and head injuries. Also yesterday, several Kansas communities began cleaning up from tornadoes a day earlier that killed at least two people, destroyed much of the small town of Chapman, and caused extensive damage on the Kansas State University campus. All eyes on election

New poll suggests people hope U.S. vote to spur change

People around the globe widely expect the next American president to improve the country's policies toward the rest of the world, especially if Barack Obama is elected.

Yet a newly released poll suggests most retain a persistently poor image of the United States.

The survey of two dozen countries, conducted this spring by the nonpartisan Pew Research Center, also finds a growing despondency over the international economy, with majorities in 18 countries calling domestic economic conditions poor.

watching closely

» Substantial numbers in most countries said they are closely following the U.S. presidential election, including 83 per cent in Japan.

In more bad news for the United States, people share a widespread sense the American economy is hurting their countries, including large majorities in U.S. allies such as Britain, Germany, Australia, Turkey, France and Japan. Even six in 10 Americans agree the U.S. economy is having a negative impact abroad. Canada was not among the countries surveyed.

Views of the United States improved or stayed the same as last year in 18 countries, the first positive signs the poll has found for the U.S. image worldwide this decade.

Even so, many improvements were modest and the U.S. remains less popular in most countries than it was before it invaded Iraq in 2003, with majorities in only eight expressing favourable opinions. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ozone repair may warm continent

The gradual repair of the ozone hole above Antarctica could warm the frigid continent by weakening the cold winds that protect it from tropical heat, says a new study.

Research published yesterday in the journal Science says the vortex of winds that ring Antarctica is at risk as the damaged ozone layer is restored.

"Although the rest of the climate is warming up ... there's been a cooling over the Antarctic plateau and a speeding up of the winds around the edge of the Antarctic," said University of Toronto professor Ted Shepherd, who co-authored the paper with scientists from the U.S. Switzerland and Japan.

"As the ozone hole heals, then we have more ozone, the ozone is coming back. And that will trap more heat, so it'll be a warming effect."

Ozone is the thin protective layer in the earth's stratosphere that filters dangerous ultraviolet sunlight, which damages vegetation and can cause skin cancer and cataracts. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Food prices remain low

Hikes slowest after Japan: StatsCan

Here's something to chew on over your morning bowl of cereal: Only 2 per cent of the price is the cost of the grain.

The rest goes to pay for shipping, processing, packaging and advertising, along with heating and lighting the store where it is sold, a Statistics Canada report says.

inflation

» Food price inflation south of the border is up 5.9 per cent over the last 12 months.

That's one of the reasons food price inflation remains relatively low in Canada, at 1.2 per cent over the 12 months, even as the price of grain soars on world markets, the study concludes.

It's not the only reason Canada has the second lowest food price inflation in the world, after Japan, says the StatsCan study, called Food Prices: A boon for producers, a buffer for consumers.

A rising dollar has made imports, like fruits and vegetables, cheaper, offsetting higher prices for things like bread and pasta. Canada's supply management system, which limits imports of poultry, eggs and milk, keep prices for those goods relatively stable.

And the entry of Wal-Mart Canada into the fresh food market has sparked a price war among food retailers, pushing prices on store shelves below cost in some instances. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Thousands of unionists march outside the General Motors Assembly Complex in Oshawa yesterday, protesting GM's decision to close the truck plant in 2009.

Judge holds off on injunction

Blockade of GM's offices continues

background

» The blockade was sparked by GM's plans to shut down its Oshawa truck plant, axing 2,600 jobs.

While about 2,000 union members from across Ontario spent yesterday rallying in front of General Motors headquarters, lawyers for the company and the Canadian Auto Workers learned they would have to wait for the ruling that will determine the fate of an ongoing blockade of the automaker's head offices in Oshawa.

Judge David Salmers ruled he needed to consider the matter at least overnight to consider whether to grant an injunction to end the blockade, which began June 4.

"This is not a simple case and it is certainly not unimportant," said Salmers, who told lawyers he would deliver his ruling via e-mail as soon as possible.

No presidential pardon sought

JUSTICE Conrad Black says he's not asking for a presidential pardon as he fights U.S. convictions for fraud and obstruction of justice and remains optimistic that "one way or another, justice will prevail." Rumours were stoked when U.S. President George W. Bush commuted the sentence of former White House aide Lewis (Scooter) Libby whose conviction had been secured by Patrick Fitzgerald, the Chicago U.S. Attorney who brought the case against Black. Croatia's Ivica Olic celebrates after scoring his side's second goal during Euro 2008 Group B action against Germany yesterday in Klagenfurt, Austria. Croatia clinched a quarter-final spot with a 2-1 win and a 1-1 draw between Austria and Poland.

Croatia shocks Germany

Austria remains in contention

Croatia did the hard work early, beating tournament favourite Germany 2-1, and then spent the latter hours of yesterday watching Austria complete the job by getting a late 1-1 draw with Poland to ensure the Croats made the European Championship quarter-finals.

Croatia upset the three-time champions to clinch first place in Group B, getting goals from Darijo Srna and Ivica Olic in Klagenfurt. A few hours later in Vienna, Austria midfielder Ivica Vastic scored an injury-time penalty to keep the Euro 2008 co-hosts in the tournament.

"We played a phenomenal game," Croatia coach Slaven Bilic said. "We closed the lanes. We attacked them early. We shut them down where they are most dangerous."

> « We played too many high balls and for them they were easy to deal with. I think it's a deserved loss. »
> Germany coach Joachim Loew

Any of the other three teams in the group can still advance along with the Croats. The final set of Group B games will be played Monday when Austria plays Germany in Vienna and Poland takes on Croatia in Klagenfurt.

Croatia took the game to the Germans, negating the strength of their forward line and taking advantage of a couple defensive lapses. The Croats also beat the Germany in the 1998 World Cup quarter-finals.

"We showed our real face today," Croatia midfielder Luka Modric said. "We showed that we can play well when we face a big team. We were very motivated."

Srna gave Croatia the lead in the 24th minute, beating defender Marcell Jansen to the ball after Danijel Pranjic had swapped passes with Ivan Rakitic and crossed the ball. Olic added a second in the 63rd, tapping in a deflection after a shot from Rakitic was deflected by Germany forward Lukas Podolski and bounced off the post right at Olic's feet.

Podolski scored his third goal of the tournament with a volley in the 79th.

"We were not the same team that played against Poland. We never managed to step up the pace, we did not have the precision in our passes," Germany coach Joachim Loew said. "They pulled back after the first goal and we did not really manage to put them under pressure. We played too many high balls and for them they were easy to deal with. I think it's a deserved loss."

Italy pins hopes on star striker

World champs face elimination

Italy striker Alessandro del Piero will start in today's European Championship qualifier against Romania and will also wear the captain's armband as the world champions try to avoid a humiliating elimination from the tournament.

Coach Roberto Donadoni, his job on the line after the 3-0 defeat against the Netherlands, announced that Del Piero will take over as captain from goalkeeper Gianluigi Buffon.

Alessandro Del Piero

Donadoni said he would make "three or four changes" in his lineup, also revealing that Giorgio Chiellini will be part of the defence. Italy will be eliminated if they lose to Romania.

"I think it's fairly logical to make some changes," Donadoni said. "We have other alternatives."

Donadoni was heavily criticized after the debacle against the Netherlands for wavering with his lineup choices until two hours before kickoff. Now, he has announced his intentions publicly 24 hours before match time — and it seems the players all know their positions already.

"I'm going to play next to (Luca) Toni as a second forward," said Del Piero, who has scored 27 goals for Italy in 87 appearances. "I want to be in the right place at the right time, and I want to be decisive."

Del Piero topped the list of Serie A scorers this season with 21 goals.

Ovechkin hauls in hardware

Capitals superstar adds Hart, Pearson to trophy shelf

All that's missing now is the biggest trophy of them all.

Washington Capitals superstar winger Alexander Ovechkin capped a magical season last night by capturing the two most prestigious individual awards in hockey, winning the Hart Trophy as NHL MVP and the Lester B. Pearson Award as the players' choice for the most outstanding player.

The trophy haul had already included the Rocket Richard Trophy as the NHL's top goal scorer (65) and the Art Ross Trophy as the top point-getter (112).

Next up for this trophy case?

"I want to win everything," said the 22-year-old. "So next year maybe the Stanley Cup."

Jarome Iginla of the Calgary Flames and Evgeni Malkin of the Pittsburgh Penguins were the other finalists for both the Hart and Pearson.

Detroit Red Wings captain Nicklas Lidstrom captured his sixth career Norris Trophy as the NHL's top defenceman, while teammate Pavel Datsyuk won his third consecutive Lady Byng Trophy as the league's most gentlemanly player and his first Selke Trophy as top defensive forward.

New Jersey Devils star Martin Brodeur won his fourth Vezina Trophy as the NHL's best goaltender in the past five years.

Maple Leafs winger Jason Blake, who was diagnosed with leukemia last fall, won the Bill Masterton Trophy as the NHL player who best exemplifies the qualities of perseverance, sportsmanship and dedication to hockey.

Chinese legend en garde for Canada

YORK REPORT
MARTY YORK
marty.york@metronews.ca

Beijing 2008 Olympic Preview

At about 10:30 a.m. yesterday, Jujie Luan received a clean bill of health from her doctor in Edmonton.

What does this have to do with the price of tea in China?

Well, nothing, but it certainly will increase the price of Olympic tickets in China.

Luan, see, is a Chinese legend. She won a gold medal for China in fencing in 1984. She is officially listed as one of China's top 50 sports stars. Her image has adorned Chinese postage stamps. A movie chronicled her life. There were several Chinese best-selling books on her. Chinese youngsters still study her feats in textbooks. She is as recognizable in China as, say, Wayne Gretzky in Canada.

Now, Luan is hoping to become a two-country legend. At the ripe young age of 50, and after retirement stints of 12 and eight years, Luan qualified recently to represent Canada at this summer's Olympics in China, although she wasn't certain she'd be able to compete until her doctor's appointment yesterday.

"I've been very tired lately," she told me via cellphone as she left the doctor's office. "I needed blood tests. It's my thyroid, but it's OK and I'm going to Beijing."

She'll be a scalper's delight there. She'll draw capacity crowds. She may be the most compelling story at the Games.

Her return is "already all over the Chinese newspapers," said Luan's husband, Dajin Gu. "I don't think it's common knowledge in Canada, but it's major, major news there."

Jujie insisted she isn't nervous. "I'm fine mentally," she said. "I've been through a lot."

True. She joined China's national fencing team at 16 and became the world's best despite a serious kidney ailment. In 1983, she grew fond of Edmonton while at the World University Games and moved to the city six years later to study English at the University of Alberta. She became a Canadian citizen and was inducted into Edmonton's Hall of Fame this week.

"We would have returned to China, but our oldest child was born here with Down syndrome and we knew we couldn't get affordable health care there," Gu explained, "so we stayed.

"Canada's great. I do nothing. Jujie teaches and coaches (fencing in Edmonton). Our children (Jessica, 16, Jerrica, 14, and Daniel, 10) are happy."

They'd be happier, of course, if mom wins another medal, but Gu has cautioned them.

"She has no chance," he said. "Fencing is a young people's sport. Jujie has great technique and she dreams of another medal, but reality is reality."

Marty York has been a groundbreaking sports columnist and broadcaster in Canada for decades.

BEN LEMPHERS/METRO EDMONTON

Master fencer Jujie Luan, who has taught the sport at the Edmonton Fencing club for 20 years, will be representing Canada at the Beijing Olympics in August.

Joseph shines in Argo debut

New QB makes early statement

ALOUETTES 34 ARGOS 34

Kerry Joseph heated up the quarterback debate in Toronto as he tore through the Montreal defence for 17 third-quarter points, although the Alouettes came back to earn a 34-34 tie with the Argonauts in CFL pre-season play last night.

Joseph

Joseph, the CFL's outstanding player last year with Saskatchewan before being dealt to the Argos in the off-season, is pushing incumbent Michael Bishop for the starting job.

Bishop was also sharp, putting up 10 points in the first quarter.

Alouettes quarterback prospect Ricky Santos played the fourth quarter and erased the 10-point lead built by Joseph with a three-yard touchdown pass to Larry Taylor and Damon Duval's 40-yard field goal with 56 seconds to play.

Trailing 24-17 when he took over the ball to start the second half, Joseph's drives led to a 44-yard field goal by Robert Eeuwes, a three-yard TD run by Andre Durie and a 14-yard TD pass to Arland Bruce for a 34-24 lead.

It was the first game for two rookie head coaches — Marc Trestman in Montreal and Rich Stubler in Toronto — and marked the return to action of veteran kicker Mike Vanderjagt to the Argos.

Co-leader Kevin Streelman waves to the gallery after finishing his first round of the U.S. Open championship at Torrey Pines Golf Course yesterday in San Diego.

Streelman, Hicks lead at U.S. Open

Limping Tiger still in hunt at major

Tiger Woods grimaced and pursed his lips, unable to disguise the pain yesterday in the U.S. Open.

No, it wasn't his left knee, though that was still tender from surgery.

It was more the three-putt to end his round at Torrey Pines in San Diego and leave him four shots behind a pair of surprising leaders and one behind Phil Mickelson.

Nothing torments Woods more than that.

He expected soreness in his knee. He didn't expect his first double bogey in 416 holes.

What no one saw coming — certainly not the gallery that stood a dozen deep to watch the all-star pairing of Woods and Mickelson — was Kevin Streelman and Justin Hicks tied for the lead at 3-under 68.

"To make two double bogeys and a three-putt and only be four back, that's a great position to be in," Woods said after his 1-over 72, "because I know I can clean that up tomorrow."

Another shot at the Hulk

The Incredible Hulk
Stars Edward Norton, Liv Tyler
Director Louis Leterrier
PG

By RICK McGINNIS
Metro Toronto

Edward Norton stars in the title role in this incarnation of The Incredible Hulk, opening this weekend.

REVIEW THE FIRST and best sign that director Louis Leterrier understands the job in front of him in the second movie take on Marvel Comic's Hulk is the winking cameo he gives Lou Ferrigno — the big green monster in the '70s TV series — and the late Bill Bixby, glimpsed in a rerun of The Courtship Of Eddie's Father.

For the audience buying tickets for the film this weekend, Ed Norton will be playing Bruce Banner, the character made famous for them by Bixby back in the '70s, and not by poor Eric Bana in the ill-starred Ang Lee film of 2003 to which this is, ostensibly, a sequel.

Like an embarrassing relative or your high school haircut, Lee's film is something no one wants to discuss, but its shadow hangs over Leterrier's film.

Leterrier has no interest in departing from the comic book film form, to his credit; the film sets up the scenario quickly — Banner in exile in a favela in Brazil, searching for a cure for his "condition" — and rewards us with a big action set piece and the first appearance of Banner's hulking alter ego within the first half hour.

We get the love interest (Liv Tyler), the bad guys (William Hurt and Tim Roth) and the stock conspiracy theory plot mechanism with a secret military program; everything in its place and a place for everything.

What Ang Lee overlooked — or ignored — was that the comic book film is rarely interested in innovation, and especially innovation that deprives it of its brute thrills in favour of a more nuanced exploration of character.

Like it or not, the successful comic franchise film craves the familiar — how else do you explain the roar that issued from the preview audience during the film's coda, which featured a cameo by Robert Downey Jr. as Tony Stark — aka Iron Man — which borrowed the good karma of summer 2008's much more successful big screen comic franchise to give its audience the "happy ending" they craved?

A rewarding father and son experience

When Did You Last See Your Father
Stars Jim Broadbent, Colin Firth
Director Anand Tucker
PG

By STEVE GOW
for Metro Toronto

REVIEW IF IT'S rather verbose title doesn't dissuade audiences from seeing it, When Did You Last See Your Father may end up one of the summer's most rewarding experiences at the cinema.

When Arthur Morrison (Oscar winner Jim Broadbent) is diagnosed with terminal cancer, his resentful son Blake (Colin Firth) returns to the family home, initiating a series of flashbacks of frustrating and embarrassing encounters.

While struggling with the suspicion that his dad had a family with another woman, Blake attempts to make sense of a troubled life-long relationship.

Based on author Blake Morrison's popular memoir, this film balances sentimentality and earnestness in good measure.

Anand Tucker (Shopgirl) provides solid direction with an understated tone and uses mirrors in an alluring way as if to metaphorically show us that our reflection is not always what it appears.

Meanwhile, the script raises interesting questions about the notion that people are entitled to keep some secrets private.

But the true revelation here is the always-sensational Jim Broadbent.

While Arthur may be overbearing and reprehensible for the torment he brought upon his son, Broadbent also gives the character such gravitas that it'll cause you to walk away asking yourself, "when did you last see your father?"

Young People a sensual adventure

Young People F---ING
Stars Aaron Abrams, Carly Pope
Director Martin Gero
18A

Young People F---ing is now in theatres.

REVIEW The first kiss in Young People F---ing, the sex comedy that dares not speak its full name, is tentative and almost chaste.

The smooch is accompanied by mutual insults: "You're an idiot!" "No, you're an idiot!"

Not exactly the nation-shaking boot-knocking you were expecting? You could be forgiven for thinking YPF would literally sizzle out of the projector, given all the heat its title has provoked from clueless politicians and self-righteous moralists.

In truth, Canadian filmmaker Martin Gero's very funny and insightful feature debut is far less shocking that its detractors — most of whom haven't even seen it — would have you believe.

Older canoodlers, those of us pointedly excluded by the title (but let's forgive that, shall we?), will recognize YPF as a slightly raunchier version of Love, American Style, a TV series popular in the early 1970s.

It shares the same sketch format of 20-something and 30-something couples working out various love dilemmas.

The only difference here is that one of the couples is a threesome.

The actors are the finest troupe of fresh Canuck faces to appear on film in many a moon, and they're all totally game.

All of them progress through a six-part sensual adventure, marked by chapters: Prelude, Foreplay, Sex, Interlude, Orgasm, and Afterglow.

Despite the formula format, there are a few surprises to be had, along with a practical demonstration of the best kind of music for f--ing.

If you're looking for porn, you've come to the wrong place.

There are a few bare breasts, a couple bare asses, one naughty strap-on and that's about it.

The nation's moral fibre remains intact. If you're looking for a good time and a little wisdom, then come right in.

Faithfull holds on to sincerity in Irina Palm

Irina Palm
Stars Marianne Faithfull, Miki Mranojlovic, Jenny Agutter
Director Sam Garbarski
14A

REVIEW THIS SEEMS to be the season, in the art house circuit, for ex-girlfriends of the Rolling Stones. A few weeks ago it was Anita Pallenberg impersonating the Queen in Mister Lonely. Now it's Marianne Faithfull starring in Irina Palm, a pleasingly sentimental British domestic drama.

Faithfull has grown stout over the years, but unlike Pallenberg, who looks like a wreck in Mister Lonely, she has retained something of the doe-eyed look of her youth. Such a sensitive appearance is appropriate to her character, Maggie, a penniless widow who dotes on her grandson.

Unfortunately the boy has an illness that will prove terminal unless he undergoes a rare procedure in Australia. His parents have no money, and neither does Maggie. In desperation she wanders into a sex club in SoHo one day, meets the proprietor Miki (Miki Manojlovic) and asks for a job advertised as a "hostess." She thinks it means somebody who makes tea.

Actually the hostess sits in a cubicle beside a hole in the wall through which she provides an anonymous sexual service for male clients. Rest assured these scenes are filmed discreetly.)

Somewhat improbably Maggie proves a wizard at this humble task, and is even given a nom de main, Irina Palm.

Manojlovic's world-weary performance, paired against Faithfull's sincerity, keeps this movie afloat, a movie that generally asks the viewer not to think too hard about it.

What makes Broadbent phenomenal?

Touching drama is latest role for English actor

By STEVE GOW
for Metro Toronto

FEATURE WHAT MAKES Jim Broadbent such a phenomenal actor? It's a question not easily answered, but certainly worth consideration. Is it his notable appearances in blockbusters like Moulin Rouge!, Bridget Jones's Diary or this summer's fourth Indiana Jones movie?

While always solid support, I'd argue the English actor's real presence has instead been made with roles in more independently-spirited films like his Oscar-winning turn in Iris, Topsy-Turvy or, perhaps, most recently as eccentric patriarch Arthur Morrison in the touching drama When Did You Last See Your Father?

In the memoir-based film, Broadbent plays the father of acclaimed author Blake Morrison (Colin Firth). After discovering Arthur has a terminal illness, Blake returns to take care of his family while dealing — primarily in flashbacks — with painful memories of his difficult, possibly duplicitous dad.

Jim Broadbent, left, and Colin Firth star in the drama When Did You Last See Your Father?

"I had a sort of head start in knowing about the character I suppose," Broadbent said while promoting the film in Toronto. "I identified with it as a son of a father and also as a son whose father died in similar circumstances; of cancer, at home, with all the family around."

The drama is an intelligent, well-crafted tearjerker that explores the complexities of family life.

"(Father and son relationships) are never as simple as sometimes made out," Broadbent points out. "There is always an awful lot of grey area."

That "grey area" is exactly what gives this film its emotional impact. While not a clearly dubious character, Arthur does have a quality that has emotionally tortured his son. As director Anand Tucker explains, it's a subtlety only a pro like Broadbent could have portrayed.

"(Broadbent) manages to be that slightly monstrous, terrible, overbearing creature that Blake gets more and more angry and feels more and more betrayed by," explains Tucker. "Then at the key moment at the end of the movie, (he) turns it all around and suddenly you realize that he is the father who just loved his son."

Perhaps the real reason to appreciate Jim Broadbent is best expressed by Tucker, who says, "he can take you on a journey with a character you think is quite difficult and yet you still end up loving him."

Ah, I think my question was just answered.

Early setup spoils The Happening

The HAPPENING

Stars Mark Wahlberg, Zooey Deschanel, John Leguizamo
Director M. Night Shyamalan

14A

By RICK MCGINNIS
Metro Toronto

REVIEW THERE WAS once a punk rock novelty song recorded by a fellow named John Otway with the unlikely title Beware Of The Flowers 'Cause I'm Sure They're Gonna Get You Yeah.

It was a daft rave-up that still managed to keep your head bobbing even after the humour of the chorus had worn off, but no one ever imagined that someone would make a whole movie based on its premise. This little gag — a very little one, I'll shamefully admit — was the only thing that kept me smiling once the pivotal premise of The Happening revealed itself.

The very great problem with M. Night Shyamalan's films is that once he departs from the nameless dread so painstakingly created in their setup, they've lost most of their reason to exist. He's a horror director uninterested in shocking you silly, and a maker of thrillers with one big plot point on which everything pivots, instead of a few dozen smaller ones meant to keep you intrigued. And once you've passed over the fulcrum of that pivot his films often disintegrate into unintentional humour.

Zooey Deschanel and Mark Wahlberg star in The Happening, now in theatres.

The Happening begins with a high school science teacher (Mark Wahlberg) quizzing his students about some inexplicable and ominous disturbances in nature's balance, just as several cities in the U.S. northeast are being hit with what looks like a chemical attack. Things get serious fast, and he flees the city with his wife (Zooey Deschanel) and best friend (John Leguizamo), and they quickly find themselves stranded in the country as the suicide-inducing contagion closes in on them.

The film is a bit of a departure for the director, since he reveals the big premise early on, and not near the end, sparing the audience the eye-rolling revelations that made Signs and The Village so retroactively disappointing. Unfortunately, that means you can start rolling your eyes and giggling earlier, with the first film that makes itself the punch line to global warming's joke.

DON'T MESS WITH THE ZOHAN

★★★½ (out of 5)

Adam Sandler plays the title role in the film, a sort of Israeli James Bond with a secret dream of styling hair in New York City, who fakes his death and goes off to live his blow-dried, '80s-inspired dream. Sandler plays Zohan with an Israeli accent so painstakingly bad that it becomes its own joke, as does the film's barrage of Hebrew and Arab slang, most of it invented.

KUNG FU PANDA

Kung Fu Panda introduces us to Po (Jack Black), a lazy panda who dreams of one day becoming a martial arts master, but is simply too fat and lazy to make it happen. That is until he is crowned the next "chosen one" destined to hold the title of master, only to find himself tagged with the honour, much to the chagrin of the crusty guru Shifu (Stranger Than Fiction's Dustin Hoffman). Kids will love watching a dumb panda fumbling around as he tries to save his village from destruction of a sinister snow leopard.

CHRIS ATCHISON/METRO TORONTO

INDIANA JONES AND THE KINGDOM OF THE CRYSTAL SKULL

Film fans young and old will be hard-pressed to miss the smile creeping across their face when they hear John Williams' famed score and see that trademark fedora make its first big-screen appearance in 19 years, in a much-anticipated re-introduction to the greatest adventure character of all time. The Kingdom Of The Crystal Skull is pure summertime blockbuster joy.

Robert Downey Jr. as Iron Man, a.k.a. arms dealer turned good guy Tony Stark, proves he's one of today's best character actors. With a great supporting cast (Jeff Bridges, Gwyneth Paltrow) and thrilling action sequences, Iron Man is a welcome return to the comic book movie genre.

Young People having sex

We can't print the real title of this Canadian movie

By CHRIS ATCHISON

Natalie Lisinska and Ennis Esmer star in Young People F—ing.

FEATURE ACTORS Ennis Esmer and Natalie Lisinska aren't quite sure what all the fuss is about. Their new film has raised the ire of politicians and some in the movie-going public, few of whom have actually seen the picture.

It should be noted that it contains no violence, bare breasts and a couple bottoms are the only nudity on display, and with the exception of some explicit language, the sexual content is far from gratuitous.

Maybe it's the title, Young People F—ing, that's raised more than a few eyebrows across this great land. "People assume things out of nowhere," Esmer says. "They hear the title, think of something else and think that's what the movie is about."

"I think the universal reaction to it from people who have seen it is, 'Oh, it's really sweet, isn't it?'" Lisinska adds. Controversial monikers aside, the comedy has drawn most of its attention from critics who lauded the comedy's sharp, edgy writing and witty dialogue when it premiered at the Toronto International Film Festival last year.

It follows a group of 20- and 30-somethings at roadblocks in their private lives: The bored couple, the player dating the girl from work, the exes still looking for love, the friends who decide to take things a bit further in their relationship, and the couple (Esmer and Lisinska) that invites their roommate into the bedroom to spice things up.

Directed by Canadian Martin Gero, and co-written by Gero and Canadian actor Aaron Abrams, the film is an exploration of the complexities of relationships, rather than the gratuitous romp its title suggests.

Still, the rest of the press Young People F—ing has received has largely been tied to the ramifications of Bill C-10, which would give the federal Heritage Department the power to deny funding for TV programs and films deemed offensive or inappropriate, or retroactively revoke tax credits for productions considered offensive. The film has become something of a symbol for Canadian filmmakers threatened by the prospect of a government department being able to pull the financial plug on their projects.

"That's what's so ridiculous about the controversy with the government because sex is such a universal thing that everyone experiences and everyone does," Lisinska says.

Esmer opines: "If the ladies at my stepmother's Shabbat dinner are OK with the content of the movie, then the Conservatives should just tone it down."

As far as that provocative title is concerned, Esmer adds it's just time to get over it.

"When you put the title out there it became the responsibility of the press or the people who run the movie theatres.

"They can call the movie whatever they want."

The film opens in theatres today.

Roth revels in villain role

The Incredible Hulk star finds his foil

By STEVE GOW
for Metro Toronto

GETTY IMAGES
Tim Roth

FEATURE EVERY GREAT superhero deserves a great villain and even the monstrous behemoth that is the Hulk is no different. Lucky for the producers behind The Incredible Hulk, Hollywood's go-to guy for playing the perfect bad dude was available when they called. Enter Tim Roth.

Having played everything from an evil monkey in Planet Of The Apes to a love struck robber in Pulp Fiction and even earning a coveted Academy Award nomination as the scheming villain in 1995's Rob Roy, Roth has earned a well-deserved reputation as the ideal rapscallion. "I don't mind (playing villains) if they're kind of juicy," Roth recently told me while promoting The Incredible Hulk.

"If I'm having a good time with it, the audience tends to see that." With The Incredible Hulk, Roth returns to form playing Emil Blonsky, an over-the-hill soldier who craves the thrill of power. When he purposely gets a greater dose of the same gamma radiation that turned rival Bruce Banner into The Hulk, he quickly takes advantage of his new beastly power — one that only the green-skinned superhero can match.

"It was a seriously large amount of fun we had making it," says Roth.

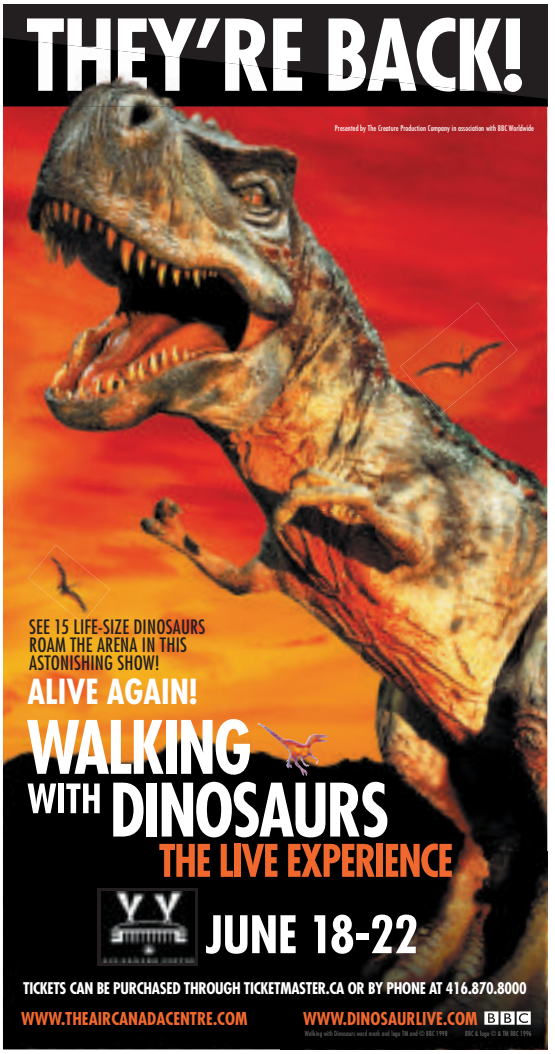
But the shoes of his character (The Abomination) are not easy to fill. The history of The Hulk goes back to 1962 when he debuted in comic-book form.

Five years later, The Abomination made its first appearance and has since become one of The Hulk's most revered foes.

"I was wary of (the fans) because they're tough," says Roth. "But they've actually gone through the roof. They love it." And hardcore fans aren't the only ones appreciating Roth's villainous portrayal. Critics have also been kind to the latest Hulk blockbuster. It might not even be a shock to Roth if he found out the role returned him to, dare I say it, awards territory.

"(The Abomination) kind of reminds me of the Rob Roy guy in a way," admits Roth. "As clumsily as I play it, it's still quite carefully written so it's sort of a bad guy experience that the audience can enjoy."

The Incredible Hulk opens today.



George Clooney, left, is starring in The Tourist, an adaptation of the Olen Steinhauer novel. Writer Anthony Peckham is penning the script for the project, a contemporary thriller about a spy tangled in a conspiracy, accused of a murder he didn't commit.

Beating the boys at their own game

Hathaway more than holds her own with comic actors

By GLEN MILLER
Metro Toronto

GETTY IMAGES

Anne Hathaway stars as Agent 99 in Get Smart, opening next weekend.

FEATURE ONE, TWO, THREE, four male actors . . . and keep counting the male universe on the set of Get Smart.

Enter the lone major female star — Anne Hathaway. As Agent 99, the 25-year-old had a ball playing with the boys during the four-month shoot. Most notably acting with the lead boy — Steve Carell, Agent 86, in the good vs. evil movie that opens in theatres next Friday.

As it turns out, Hathaway isn't only a good actress on-screen, but admits deft subliminal acting by hiding her nerves from her co-stars. After all, such major players as Carell, Alan Arkin (chief) and Terence Stamp (Ziegfried) have an array of film credits. "It always is (nerve-wracking), but I'm really good at hiding it," Hathaway told Metro. "I didn't want to make everyone else around me uncomfortable by talking about how obsessed I am — with them ... I very easily could have geeked out everyday, but I don't think we would have got a lot of work done. I was very intimidated by everything that was going on, but I chose to try and appear that I was cool and knew what I was doing." Get Smart, the big-screen version, weighs in with an abundance of action and comedy mix, just like the legendary Emmy Award winning TV series (1965-70) that has gained more fans over the years through syndication.

But according to Carell, it was Hathaway who was turning heads with her ... speed.

"There were several scenes in the movie where we are running toward Disney Hall (downtown L.A.) at full tilt," said Carell. "I was running as fast as I possibly could run. Anne Hathaway was wearing 4-5-6-inch heels and she was kicking my ass. And I have no idea how that is physically possible." And then there's those occasions on set when real life takes over and you just have to wing it. For Hathaway, that would be having a health issue during the time she had to kiss Carell during a romantic scene. Due to a mix of using a contact solution that was pulled off the shelves last year, and a simultaneous sinus infection, Hathaway got pink eye. "And my tears kind of got in my mouth, (before kissing him)," Hathaway said, laughing. "It was very glamorous."

Carell escaped infection. But as Michael Scott in The Office, he probably wouldn't have.

THE CRITIC

• Anne Hathaway on analyzing her acting:

"I hate everything the first time I see it. Everything. Every last performance I've ever seen for the first time . . . the best I've ever given myself was, well, it didn't suck and that was for Brokeback (Mountain). I'm really critical."

Evil Urges unleashed

My Morning Jacket takes new disc in different direction

By BRYAN BORZYKOWSKI
for Metro Toronto

Profile WHEN SONGS from Louisville, Ky., jam rockers My Morning Jacket started leaking, the collective response to the record was shock. The reaction was mainly sparked by the track, Highly Suspicious, which features singer Jim James putting on an unusual falsetto with the rest of the band chanting the song's title in the background. It's a far cry from the group's usual melodic pop affairs, something drummer Patrick Hallahan is well aware of.

"I heard this particular song and I was like, 'What the hell is this?'" he says, recalling the moment when James played the band the tune for the first time. "Jim is one of my best friends and you think you know the guy and you get this and I'm like, 'Maybe I don't talk to you enough.'"

It wasn't long before the five-piece warmed up to the surprisingly catchy tune. Hallahan explains the track was simply mean to be a fun listen, but there's more going on here than just a band wanting to have a good time. Evil Urges is easily one of My Morning Jacket's more eclectic offerings, with quirky tracks, straight-up southern tunes, and infectious rock 'n' roll littering the disc. While it's as interesting as their other records, My Morning Jacket has definitely gone in a different direction.

in concert ...

» My Morning Jacket plays the Kool Haus June 16 as part of North By Northeast.

"We wanted to challenge ourselves, says Hallahan. "We tried to get out of our normal comfort zone of seclusion and unlimited time."

To do that the group recorded in New York City — it's the first time it has ventured outside Louisville to make a record. "We were working in a studio where we could only go for 12 hours at a time," he reveals. "We've never been faced with limitations like that before. It yielded a different outcome because we had to focus more."

There's a chance some fans might be turned off by tracks like Highly Suspicious, though so far the tune has garnered much more praise than scorn. While the band knows some fans might be alienated by the new tunes, Hallahan says growing as a group trumps popular opinion. "We had to take these steps for our mental stability," he explains. "We have to grow, change and create. In order to do that we have to try new things and push ourselves. We just ask that people stick with us."

Evil Urges is the new album from My Morning Jacket.

But pushing themselves wasn't easy. Hallahan even spent a few days wondering if recording in New York was the right decision. "It was stressful at times. It was a lot of work and really changed the way we recorded. But," he adds, "it was a lot of fun, too."

In the end My Morning Jacket achieved their goal for Evil Urges — it's focused, diverse and, for better or for worse, it shows that a 10-year-old band can still evolve. "It will piss some people off and make others very happy," says Hallahan. "We're still catching flack for not making another At Dawn."

Blondie celebrates 30 years of Parallel Lines

Blondie plays Casino Rama tonight.

YOU COULD CALL it the curse of Blondie. Debbie Harry prefers "double-edged sword."

For the iconic front woman of the equally iconic band, more than three decades of being in the spotlight has been bittersweet.

"You are really proud of your success, you are proud of the things you've written and done, yet it sort of haunts you in a way," says the grand dame of '70s New Wave glitterati.

Success rarely gets much bigger than Blondie's 1978 opus Parallel Lines, a rock milestone that not only spawned hits such as Heart Of Glass and One Way Or Another but also helped make New York's underground DIY sounds a household phenomenon. "It really changed what was being played on radio in the (United) States and opened up a whole new era of more modern music," Harry says.

Blondie is currently on a North American tour to mark the 30th anniversary of Parallel Lines. An expanded anniversary edition of the album, featuring four bonus tracks and a DVD, is due June 24.

Harry admits that keeping the hits relevant and evolving is a major focus of the band, which now includes only two other original members, guitarist Chris Stein and drummer Clem Burke.

"The trick is to not just stand there like a robot, the trick is to make it come alive for the audience and the band," she says.

The Charlatans

Album: You Cross My Path
Label: Cooking Vinyl/Koch
Release Date: June 10

THIS IS EVERYTHING a modern rock album should be — nostalgic, but cutting edge; disturbing but celebratory; danceable but contemplative. Over the years, this Manchester band has learned to draw inspiration from the best of the '60s, '70s and '80s. They have a straight-to-the-point sound with just enough psychedelia to keep things interesting. Don't wait for Coldplay, buy The Charlatans. You Cross My Path maybe the band's best yet.

Sloan

Album: Parallel Play
Label: Murderecords/Sony BMG
Release Date: June 10

ALTHOUGH SLOAN has released records since 1999's Between the Bridges, it really feels like they've taken a long hiatus. After three lacklustre albums this decade, it's safe to say the band have returned to form. Parallel Play should have been released after BTB — it's full of familiar riff rockers (but good ones), Jay Ferguson's brilliant soft rock songwriting, rich harmonies and, most importantly, infectious pop hooks. Other than the obnoxious Emergency 911, Sloan's ninth disc is finally a release worth getting excited about.

BRYAN BORZYKOWSKI

N*E*R*D

Album: Seeing Sounds
Label: Interscope/Universal
Release Date: June 10

THANK GOD PHARRELL Williams and Chad Hugo, a.k.a. production wizards The Neptunes, have a successful day job. If they didn't there would be no way their hip-hop/rock side project would be as entertaining as it is. N*E*R*D's third effort doesn't follow any particular format — there's rock, rap, jazz, adult contemporary — and some of the lyrics are laugh out loud funny. If you can take this for what it is — a fun hobby for Williams and Hugo — then you'll love this disc.

BRYAN BORZYKOWSKI

My Morning Jacket

Album: Evil Urges
Label: ATO/MapleMusic
Release Date: June 10

BALLSY ATTEMPT TO shed this Kentucky outfit's neo-Southern rock tag or an excuse for Jim James and pals to test one's patience with extremely diverse tastes? Just when you fall for some consistency in I'm Amazed, Librarian and the rocking Remnants, James funks up his Prince-like falsettos (the title cut, Highly Suspicious), taps into his inner Radiohead (Touch Me I'm Going To Scream Pt. 1 and Pt. 2) and unleashes a homage to '70s soft-rockers America (Thank You Too!, Sec Walkin). Not quite MMJ's White Album, but it proves MMJ is begging for artistic acceptance beyond jam-band horizons.

IAN NATHANSON

Ivana Santilli

Album: TO.NY
Label: Do Right!/Outside
Release Date: June 10

DON'T EVER LET über-producer Timbaland near, let alone scoop up, this former Bass Is Base vocalist/songstress. The last thing the world needs is a deprivation of Santilli's steady doses of easy-on-the-ears retro-boogie. Santilli is certainly confident and content as soulful vocal deliverer. Still, for all the charms of the upbeat Hollywood (Nothing Over U) and Been Thru This, along with the lushly arranged Leave It Alone and All Afternoon, missing is some lyrical depth into her travels and travails of life living abroad and coming home. The T-dot and New York do have some urban edginess, don't they?

IAN NATHANSON

Alanis Morissette

Album: Flavors of Entanglement
Label: Maverick/Warner
Release Date: June 10

NO ONE DOES jilted lover better than Alanis Morissette. She made millions with the gritty revenge tune You Oughta Know and her latest is about her failed relationship with Ryan Reynolds.

Needless to say, Flavors of Entanglement is biting and depressing, as she muses on what when wrong, while calling a "time out from all things commitment." Musically, the disc is an odd mix of hard rock, soft piano, electronica and Eastern sounds. It's no Jagged Little Pill, but rather a curious and occasionally entertaining listen.

Jakob Dylan

Album: Seeing Things
Label: Columbia/Sony/BMG
Release Date: June 10

SO ON HIS FIRST solo album, you'd think the "Son Of Bob" would sound a lot like the old man, but this sounds more like old Bruce Cockburn. Stripped down to the bare essentials by Rick Rubin, Seeing Things has a campfire sound to it. All that brooding gets a little boring after awhile. GRAHAM ROCKINGHAM

Ashanti

Album: The Declaration
Label: The Inc./Universal
Release Date: June 3

THERE'S SOME some good beats among here, but Ashanti's true attraction is found in the soft porn of Body On Me. Hopefully, Ashanti's next declaration will be, "I'm devoting myself entirely to my movie career." GRAHAM ROCKINGHAM

SOUND CHECK
alan@ongoinghistory.com

A quick glance at the release schedule for the rest of 2008 points to a shift in the music cycle — more rock and less pop from now until Christmas.

»Coldplay (Tuesday): Although it's not out yet, their Viva la Vida album is already on torrent sites. Producer Brian Eno did for Coldplay's fourth album what he did for U2 when they needed to make the transition from the sound of War to The Unforgettable Fire. The first two minutes of Viva will likely remind you of the opening of The Joshua Tree.

»Offspring (Tuesday): Like Coldplay, they gave away millions of MP3s of the first single. Rise And Fall, Rage And Grace has the familiar Offspring approach to SoCal punk.

»Beck (July): On Modern Guilt, he's gone all psych-y with producer Danger Mouse. I heard eight songs at his manager's office in Los Angeles last week and there's a definite late '60s/early '70s vibe to a lot of the material. Chemtrails, the Syd Barrett-like song that's already on the Internet, is not the official single. My pick would be a track called Orphans.

»Nine Inch Nails (July): Expect a physical version of The Slip, the album Trent Reznor gave away online last month.

»Green Day (Fall): They have to follow up American Idiot. Talk about a tough act to follow. Ignore the Foxboro Hot Tubs project from earlier this year.

»The Killers (Fall): One of the hardest-working bands in the world today. We might hear a single as early as August with an album to follow in early October.

»AC/DC (Fall): Their first album since 2000's Stiff Upper Lip. Word is they'll follow the Eagles by offering this disc exclusively at Wal-Mart. Rumours suggest that Fleetwood Mac will do the same.

»U2 (Fall): After messing around with Daniel Lanois in Morocco last year, they're now in serious lockdown mode. If past history is anything to go on, we'll get the first single sometime in early September and the album in November. And don't expect a Radiohead-like giveaway. Manager Paul McGuinness likes selling CDs.

Viewers get to pick own Fraulein Maria

48 hopefuls vying for lead in new Sound Of Music

As a child, Canadian comedian Gavin Crawford says he adored The Sound Of Music and wanted to be Julie Andrews, who starred as Fraulein Maria in the iconic film.

It's hard to imagine better credentials for the host of How Do You Solve A Problem Like Maria?, which debuts Sunday on CBC-TV.

The seven-week TV series will feature 48 hopefuls competing for the lead role of Maria von Trapp in an upcoming Toronto stage production of The Sound Of Music, produced by Andrew Lloyd Webber, David Ian and David Mirvish, and set for debut at the Princess of Wales Theatre this fall.

The CBC show is based on a British series of the same name that Webber co-created.

"It is a lot of pressure because it was a real person, first of all, so you want to do justice to the real person and the heroine that she was," said 24-year-old Toronto actress Jennifer Walls, one of 13 Maria hopefuls at a recent singalong to promote the show.

Viewers will ultimately get to decide the winner of the Maria role. CP

Tips for celeb spotting at the MMVAs

Artists in town this weekend for Sunday's awards

By SANDY CAETANO
Metro Toronto

With the 2008 MuchMusic Video Awards taking over the corner of Queen and John streets Sunday night, it should be a great weekend for celebrity spotting.

Of course, that's if you know where to look. Though many A-list stars enjoy being out and about meeting their fans, most prefer being behind closed doors or go out in a disguise so as not to be recognized by crazed fans or media.

MuchMusic VJ Leah Miller says there are lots of places to spot artists, and, of course, MuchMusic headquarters is the best place to start.

> « The point and stare feels a bit weird, so please come and say Hi. Yes, maybe wait for us to be done with our food, but don't be shy. Just talk to us like regular people because that's what we are. » > Sébastien Lefebvre of Simple Plan

"We have rehearsals during the day on Saturday and it's great because you get to see the bands up close doing their thing," says Miller. "You'll be able to spot them grabbing a coffee, or walking around and shopping on Queen Street West."

Simple Plan's Sébastien Lefebvre (guitarist and backing vocals) says there really isn't one specific place where you can go and find all your favourite artists, it just depends on what's going on.

"I don't know if there's a specific place, but usually everybody meets up at these after parties. Maybe Perez will have one this year," Lefebvre tells Metro. "I'm an out and public kind of guy. We don't tend to hide from people at all. I feel it's when you hide or get big security guys that the fans get a bit crazier."

The French Canadian pop punk band, based out of Montreal, is up for a few awards this Sunday including Favourite Canadian group, Best Video and MuchLOUD Best Rock Video all for the song When I'm Gone. Simple Plan — Lefebvre, Jeff Stinco (lead guitar), Pierre Bouvier (lead vocals), Chuck Comeau (drums) and David Desrosiers (bass, backing vocals) — will also be performing during the awards ceremony.

So how exactly does one go about approaching a celebrity?

"The point and stare feels a bit weird, so please come and say Hi," says Lefebvre. "Yes, maybe wait for us to be done with our food, but don't be shy. Just talk to us like regular people because that's what we are."

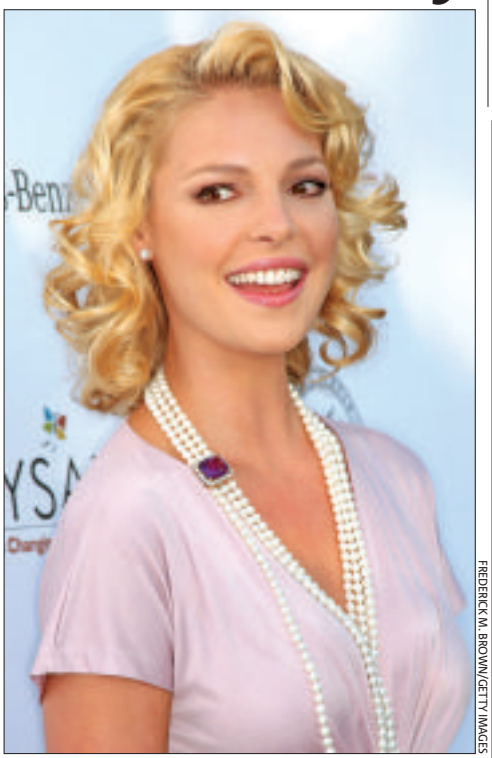
Since the MMVAs are national and now feature international acts, being a part of this huge event as musicians is very important.

"It's a really big deal, and it's not like other award shows, that's for sure. It's more of a cool hang out party with performances," he says. "We are nominated for People's Choice this year and our fans are amazing, so I think we have a shot at it. Whenever we go to the MMVA's, we have a blast."

Catch the 2008 MuchMusic Video Awards Sunday at 9 p.m. For more information, visit www.muchmusic.com.

Heigl passes on Emmy

Grey's Anatomy star declined to be nominated



FREDERICK M. BROWN/GETTY IMAGES

Katherine Heigl isn't afraid to speak her mind about some of the things that happen in her industry.

KATHERINE HEIGL won't be chewing her manicure at this year's Emmy ceremony: She says she didn't seek a nomination because Grey's Anatomy failed to deliver the goods for an award-worthy performance.

Heigl, who was honoured as best supporting actress in a drama last year for the ABC series, declined to put her name in consideration for a bid, a spokeswoman for the actress said Wednesday.

"I did not feel that I was given the material this season to warrant an Emmy nomination and in an effort to maintain the integrity of the academy organization" decided against competing, Heigl said in a written statement from her publicist, Melissa Kates.

"In addition, I did not want to potentially take away an opportunity from an actress who was given such materials," added Heigl. She plays Dr. Izzie Stevens on Grey's Anatomy, which slipped in the ratings this past season but remained a top 10 show.

An after-hours message left with a publicist for Grey's Anatomy creator and executive producer Shonda Rhimes was not immediately returned Wednesday night.

Heigl, who shot to box-office success last summer with the comedy Knocked Up, has established herself as one of Hollywood's rare voices of candor.

In a Vanity Fair magazine interview published in January, she called the hit film "a little sexist" and said that it painted women as "shrews, as humourless and uptight," while the male characters were lovable and goofy.

Kreesha Turner bounces into pop land with a sassy R&B sound.

By Noreen Flanagan
Executive Editor

Kreesha Turner may be the only artist to credit our national anthem with helping her discover her voice. As a child, the Edmonton-born singer tap danced to Oscar Peterson tunes, but it wasn't until she auditioned for a church choir at 15 that she knew she could sing. "My mother wanted me to spend a year in Jamaica so I'd understand my cultural background," she explains. "My friends were in the youth choir there, so they wanted me to try out. I didn't know what to sing, so the conductor suggested my national anthem." Turner made the cut and went on to "fall in love with music." After she graduated from high school, she told her parents that she'd spend five years pursuing a singing career; if she failed, she'd hit the books. This June, her 23rd birthday, marks that deadline. With a co-deal with EMI Canada and Virgin USA and the launch of her debut album, Passion, this August, Turner won't be resorting to Plan B. Her song Bounce With Me, an infectious R&B pop tune, has been featured on Desperate Housewives, Gossip Girl and The Hills. "I was at home in Edmonton watching Gossip Girl and my song came on," says Turner. "It was so exciting!"

Artists flaunt distinct outfits

Experts predict what stars will wear to MMVAs

By PATRICIA D'CUNHA
for Metro Toronto

FASHION WILL make a big splash at this Sunday's MuchMusic Video Awards (MMVAs), as the superstars of the music world grace the red carpet with panache and an exuberant style, from head to toe.

Whether hardcore music fans want to believe it or not, fashion has always been a part of music, from Duke Ellington's classic apparel and Elvis' flashy one-piece white suit, to Cyndi Lauper's crazed ensembles and Jimi Hendrix's electric bandana. Great artists surely have great style.

From Rihanna, illScarlett and Mel C, to Akon, Hedley and Sean Kingston, the fashion spectacle at the MMVAs promises to be stunner.

"Artists sure do have distinct styles," says Glen Baxter, host of In Fashion and reporter for the FashionTelevisionChannel. "And part of what makes them exciting to watch is that you never know what they'll do, so viewers can expect the unexpected."

» The MMVAs Red Carpet Special will be airing live at 8 p.m. this Sunday.

The unexpected is what the MMVAs are all about. "It's not your typical awards show. It's colourful, chaotic, unconventional and unscripted glam fest," Baxter says. And that's where the fun starts. Given that the award show is based on a visual medium, the artistry of the video is reflected in the artist's sense of style, whatever it may be — avant-garde, sleek, poised or eccentric.

Baxter says the MMVAs are known for its dazzling red-carpet entrances, so to expect "lots of daring duds, eye-catching colour, and lots of glam with a street twist."

Over the years, artists like Christina Aguilera, Nelly Furtado, Fergie, Lenny Kravitz, among others, have dazzled fans on the red carpet.

Pungent fashion is an art form, but it takes the right personality to pull it off. Take Rihanna, for example, who is one of the performers at the show. She's a fashion chameleon, a perfect canvas for most fashion designers. For those wondering what she'll be wearing at the MMVAs, it'll surely be dramatic. "Rihanna is a trendsetter, who is daring and willing to take chances with her look."

But she's not the only one with spunk. Hedley, the Vancouver-based rock band, who leads the MMVAs with six nominations, are known for their individuality. Baxter says that they'll make a statement no matter what they wear – whether it is jeans and a T-shirt, or a tuxedo. "With Girlicious...expect the Burlesque-inspired popstars to be wearing garters, stay-ups and all that is lacy and frilly." With Melanie C, Baxter says he expects her to "deliver a sexy statement" with a classic tailored suit.

Profile TORONTO'S BRITISH legacy was once made visible on the street level by the fish and chip shops that used to mark every neighbourhood, and to which locals usually had fierce loyalty, even going so far as to travel across town to their favourite even after they'd moved. Chains like H. Salt were probably the high watermark of fish and chips as fast food in the '70s, which was probably dealt a near-mortal blow by trends toward healthier eating in the last two decades.

Gary Conlin and Robert Joseph noticed the disappearance of fish and chip shops all across the city when the two chefs were casting around for a new venture. With 30 years of professional experience, the two men met at the late Oliver's, the popular uptown eatery, where Conlin was chef and Joseph his apprentice. After bouncing around several corporate cooking gigs, the two men were struggling to get a food court-based business off the ground when the chip shop idea hit them.

"Seeing that all the old fish and chips shops were closing and no one was reopening them," Conlin tells me, "we decided there was a demand for good fish and chips, and maybe with a bit of a twist, something a little upscale, reinvent the fish and chip business."

Deep Blue was the result — a traditional-looking fish and chip shop housed in a former Riverdale diner, with some interesting departures just beneath the surface. The first thing you'd notice would be the selection of fresh fish front and centre, offered as evidence by Conlin and Joseph that they aren't relying on frozen or pre-battered product.

Then there are the subtler touches, such as the quinoa flour batter, and the use of trans-fat free oil for frying, which happily deprives you of that waxy, coated mouth that only a can of cold Coke could cut through.

On the tables, the customary sharp white vinegar has been replace with spray bottles of milder rice vinegar. The menu is your next clue, with items such as a jerk-spiced fish, and a Cajun corn-battered haddock served with spicy fries and sides of fruity coleslaw and chutney. There's a Malaysian shrimp entrée, a salad menu that isn't offered as an afterthought, and a green pea hummus that's a tribute to mushy peas, that proudly acquired taste once essential to the old-school Anglo fish and chips experience.

Joseph was born in St. Lucia, and Conlin takes his vacation in Jamaica every year, so the two men simply drew on the nearest inspiration at hand for their deep-fried inspiration. "Fish is healthy," says Conlin, "and one of the other things that inspired me was the new generation's requirement for new, stronger, bolder flavours. Their palates are more alive, and I do see that with our clientele. A lot of the young kids are into the Jamaican and Cajun thing."

Gary Conlin, chef of Deep Blue Fish & Chips, says he sees "the new generation's requirement for new, stronger, bolder flavours."

48 city chefs, one 500-seat table

Sample fare for $5 a serving at arts event Luminato

They had some pie-in-the-sky ideas, including a table set up on Yonge Street stretching from Dundas Square to Bloor.

"There were some issues about traffic and people actually having to use the street," jokes food writer James Chatto, co-producer of the street-food extravaganza One Table, One City with Via Allegro restaurant owner Phil Sabatino.

As the first culinary component of Luminato, a 10-day celebration of Toronto's arts scene, it had to be big and bold. In the end, they got a communal table all right, this one a mere 183 metres long that seats 500.

This Saturday, Mill Street in the Distillery District will be closed off and Toronto is invited to sit down at one table and eat some of the most creative snacks the city has ever seen, including lobster-and-crab pogo dogs, sticky rice filled with Bengali-spiced cauliflower, German-style venison sausage on homemade English muffins and oxtail risotto.

if you go

» One City, One Table begins Saturday at noon and runs to 9 p.m. on Mill Street in the Distillery District.

In the spirit of Luminato, which attracted about a million people to more than 100 events last year, One Table, One City is a collaborative effort that celebrates the city's diversity through food.

"The table is a symbol of breaking bread. It's a sacred symbol," says Sabatino. "... We're celebrating multiplicity through the unity of the table."

It is affordable, too, since Torontonians will have a chance to sample fare invented by 48 city chefs for just $5 a serving.

"We've got diners as well as five-star restaurants," says Chatto.

Obviously, the chefs are not there to make money.

Jason Rosso, executive chef of Distillery District restaurants, will offer two oysters on the half shell from Pure Spirits, each of which will set him back $2.50, not to mention the cost of the pickled cucumber and truffle essence.

For him, One Table, One City is all about trying to build a collaborative food scene.

"I use it very much as a social event, to meet chefs and bring food culture to a higher place."

HOROSCOPE

ARIES | March 21-April 20
Your ability to find happiness needs some fine-tuning. Speak lovingly to a special person. Be more rational with a needy person.

TAURUS | April 21-May 21
A young man will cause problems. Everything will return to normal soon. A coward will shock everyone by taking action.

GEMINI | May 22-June 21
Be ready for some frustrating conversations. You'll have to use your ability to understand motives. You'll decide to test an absurd notion.

CANCER | June 22-July 22
You'll be forced to set boundaries. Nobody will be very happy about a big mistake. Make plans to reach out to a friend.

LEO | July 23-Aug. 23
You're able to relax with a member of the opposite sex. Have a good laugh about silliness. A mischief maker asks for help.

VIRGO | Aug. 24-Sept. 22
Love will bloom for an older female. Tone down your approach to a joker. Someone will back you up in a fresh scheme.

LIBRA | Sep. 23-Oct. 23
Someone precious asks you for a favour. Making a graceful exit will be the best choice. Depression comes from having extra work.

SCORPIO | Oct. 24- Nov. 22
A new schedule will make people uncomfortable. Ask a bureaucrat some serious questions. Avoid having too many drastic ideas.

SAGITTARIUS | Nov. 23- Dec. 21
Don't push anyone around in order to get ahead. Seek a miracle by taking responsibility. A woman will heed your call.

CAPRICORN | Dec. 22-Jan. 20
A pleasant meeting will cheer you. You'll have to work with a team to get a job done. Rules will inhibit the resolution of your desires.

AQUARIUS | Jan. 21-Feb. 18
A suspicious man will give you the benefit of a doubt. Get ready to shake things up. You can implement your secret plan.

PISCES | Feb. 19-Mar. 20
A woman will say something about love. Acknowledge an error. A collaborator will appear at the right time.

The digits 1 through 9 will appear exactly once in each row, each column, and each zone. (A zone is an outlined 3x3 grid within the larger puzzle grid. There are nine of these zones in the puzzle.) Do not enter a digit into a box if it already appears elsewhere in the same 3x3 zone, or in the same row across the puzzle, or column down the puzzle.

Oprah's got the power

Talk show host Oprah Winfrey is still the world's most powerful celebrity, BBC News Online reports Forbes magazine as saying.

The 54-year-old topped its annual countdown for the second year running, and the fifth time overall.

Golfer Tiger Woods placed second, just ahead of actress Angelina Jolie, former Destiny's Child singer Beyoncé Knowles and soccer star David Beckham.

Forbes' list is based on celebrities' earnings, Internet presence and press, television and radio coverage.

Other stars in the Top 10 include reformed pop band The Police, in joint seventh place with rapper Jay-Z.

Harry Potter author J.K. Rowling is ranked at nine, having come in 48th in last year's rundown.

Her earnings over the past 12 months – estimated to be $300 million US – make her the wealthiest celebrity on the list.

Actor Brad Pitt is ranked in 10th place, making him and Jolie one of two "power couples" to make the Top 10.

Jay-Z and Knowles are the other, having secretly married earlier this year.

Pop star Madonna, rock band The Rolling Stones and singer Elton John have all fallen out of the Top 10, as has actor Tom Cruise.

Chris talks about girl struggles

Coldplay front man Chris Martin admits he was a late bloomer, usmagazine.com reports.

"I had a tricky time with girls until I was, like, 21. I got trapped in the friendship tip many, many times," he tells Rolling Stone. "It was like, 'I need to be a rock star because this is no good: Being the kind of guy that everybody likes but no one wants to have sex with.'"

Still, Martin admits he hasn't had a lot of hot-and-heavy romances in his life. He says his wife Gwyneth Paltrow is his only "serious relationship."

He adds he enjoys the challenge of being married to the Oscar-winning actress.

"I always felt it would be great to be with a very powerful woman because it would keep you in your place," he says. "Being married to someone very successful and very powerful basically keeps you hungry to improve."

Shayne, Bachelor Matt may be over

The romance between The Bachelor: London Calling's Matt Grant and his final rose recipient, Shayne Lamas, is over, intouchweekly.com reports

"She asked him to leave her apartment in Studio City, (Calif.)," says the insider. "They're just pretending to still be together to save face for the show."

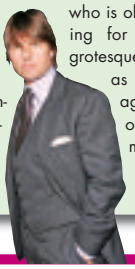
However, Grant insists the couple is still engaged and together – although he admits he did move into his own bachelor pad.

"I was at her place for a few weeks, but it was a small apartment," Grant says. "It's obviously a testing time for us as a couple, so it just seemed that it'd be great for us to have our own little space. We didn't want to be on top of each other early on."

Grant also says that Lamas didn't kick him out of her apartment.

"It wasn't like she said, 'You've got to get out!' ... It was just an agreement," says Grant. Metro News Services

Tom snaps back



Tom Cruise's lawyer has hit back at a TV doctor who questioned the star's mental heath, calling Celebrity Rehab's Dr. Drew Pinsky "unprofessional" and "unqualified," imdb.com reports.

Pinsky has written an article for Playboy suggesting Cruise might be mentally ill for getting involved with the Church of Scientology. The medical expert also claims the actor may have suffered some kind of childhood trauma.

But Cruise's attorney, Bert Fields, has slammed the article. "This unqualified television performer who is obviously just looking for notoriety is so grotesquely unprofessional as to pretend to diagnose Tom and others without ever meeting them."

Tell-alls: Madonna, Britney

Madonna and Britney Spears are about to get socked with tell-all books about their lives, PageSix.com reports.

Pop star Madonna may be the more betrayed. Her brother Christopher Ciccone, who had a falling-out with Madonna several years ago, has collaborated with journalist Wendy Leigh on an exposé of his sister for Simon Spotlight Entertainment, an imprint of Simon & Schuster – and it's going to be "brutal."

"It's extremely graphic and devastating," said a source who declined to give details. "He wrote it on the sly without telling Madonna. They want to put it out before her lawyers can get a hold of it."

The book, due out next month, has a massive print run of 350,000 copies.

A friend of Madonna said, "We'd heard rumours, but didn't realize he'd actually written it. He was there through the crazy years and has many stories to tell, I'm sure. He's seen it all. Oh, my."

Adam Rothberg, Simon & Schuster's spokesperson, told the New York Post, "We don't have anything to say at this time." Madonna's rep declined to comment.

Ciccone – a decorator/chef once described by Rupert Everett in Everett's biography as "a solid raft for Madonna in the shark-infested waters" – was ditched by his sister after she hooked up with her now husband Guy Ritchie.

Meanwhile, singer Spears is the subject of a tome by investigative reporter Ian Halperin, the author of Hollywood Undercover: Revealing The Sordid Secrets Of Tinseltown and Bad And Beautiful: Inside The Dazzling And Deadly World Of Supermodels.

Halperin, who plans to offer Stalking Britney: Under Siege With Britney Spears to publishers next week, reportedly reveals "details of at least two suicide attempts by the troubled star," as well as allegations by a drug dealer about her substance abuse.

Sienna finds it tough to censor

Actress Sienna Miller finds it hard to censor herself during interviews – and even once swore live on a TV show, imdb.com reports.

Miller says she feels at ease talking to the press and often reveals her innermost feelings during media chats, but her tendency to speak freely has landed her in hot water many times before.

"I find it very hard not to be myself and maybe that does attract attention, but I'd be miserable if I wasn't," Miller says. "I love having a chat and they know I'll probably say something stupid, which is good for their ratings. I said 'f–ing hell' by accident on Good Morning America, which was classy. I thought they had stopped filming. The producer of (new movie) G.I. Joe said they might have to give me lessons on how to conduct yourself in an interview." Metro News Services

Carrie reveals insecurities

Singing star Carrie Underwood admits she feels more nervous than sexy most of the time, MSN Entertainment reports.

"I don't consider myself sexy," Underwood said. "I'm kind of a nervous person in general. I'm socially awkward. I'm not tall and sensuous. I usually wear sweats everywhere I go."

Underwood, whose ex-beaus include football player Tony Romo and actor Chace Crawford, also fesses up – again – to being cheated on a "time or two," but she declines – again – to name names.

"Cheating is a deal breaker," she asserted. "If you cheat you're gone. Getting revenge on a guy is just not worth it to me ... the best revenge I can think of is becoming famous."

Twins news surprised Angelina

Angelina Jolie has talked candidly about her desire to continue expanding her family with Brad Pitt. But when the actress found out she was pregnant with twins, well, even she was taken aback, People.com reports.

"We weren't expecting twins," Jolie, 33, tells Entertainment Weekly in a new interview. "So it did shock us, and we jumped to six (children) quickly. But we like a challenge."

With a house full of kids, Jolie says she needs help – so it's a good thing there's family around to pitch in. "(Brad's) mom and dad are on standby to come out and help," she says.

But the real focus, Jolie says, is making sure their other children – Maddox, 6, Pax, 4, Zahara, 3, and Shiloh, 2 – feel included when their new siblings are born.

"They're old enough to feel included to change diapers themselves, to feed bottles themselves, like if I pump into a bottle," Jolie says. "We're trying to find ways where it can be a fun group thing ... Everybody gets special time so we can make sure we know where they're at."

As for how she's handling being pregnant with twins, Jolie tells EW she's taking it easy and letting Pitt handle all the heavy lifting – literally.
